Introduction

Organized By: The Prodigy Project

Duration: Around 2 weeks

Venue: Modern School/College, Nicholson College / Secondary School

Price: NPR 3500/--

After finishing my S.E.E., I was finally on my 3-month course and made plans to join the classes that are really valued instead of taking normal bridge courses, as I didn't see any value in them. I joined the workshop from the project named The Prodigy Project. It has by far been one of the best decisions that I have taken. Life is a mystery, and nobody knows what happens the next day. The only thing I had is today, and if we have done things that are actually valued, then we can be sure that tomorrow is going to turn out fine!. I learned about the workshop from my friend. She told me that she would join, but she wasn't able to join due to her health problems. I told my friend Shrawan to join, and he accepted. The project cost NPR 3500, and we found the workshop to be really fun and a wonderful experience. The time period was 2 weeks, and I learned about many new things and had a really nice experience. I learned about speaking skills and was impressed by our mentor, Bibek Dai. He really has a good way to teach. And he will also get angry if anyone disturbs him.

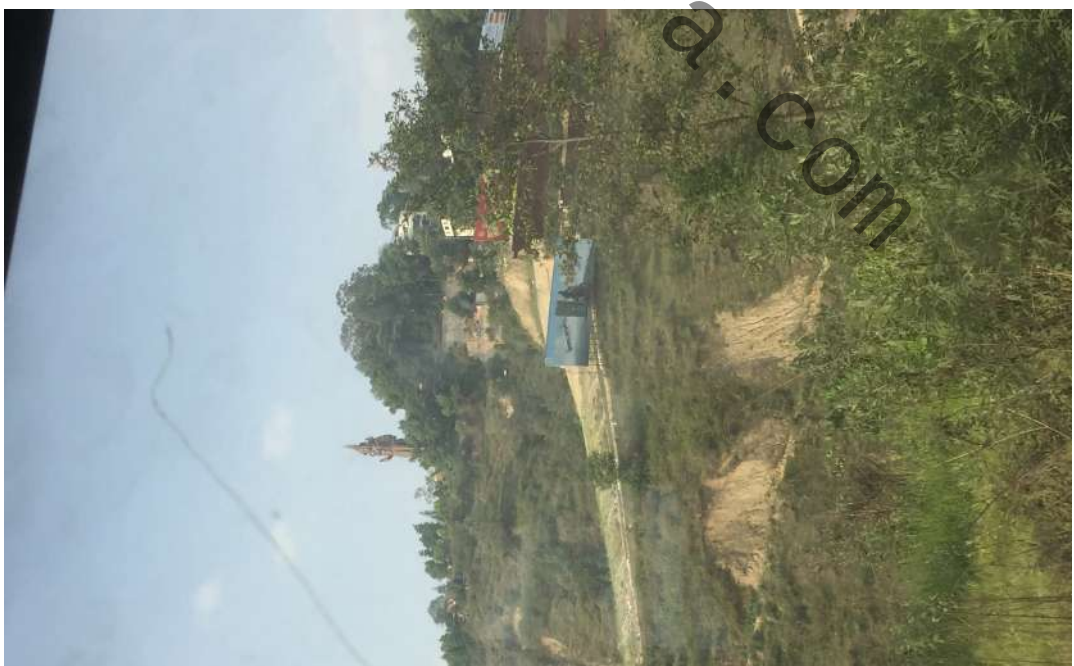

The project mainly focus on speaking skills and teamwork. It also encourage making new friends and thinking widely. They also presented award on for "BEST STUDENT". Bibek dai did quoted the award was for best student not speaker. My friend shrawan got the award. Now when I look back not getting the award is among the things that pushed me so far so good and I think none of that matters now. The prodigy product was a well facilitated and well-needed workshop for any student. And also we went to sanga after the last session with our friend tanuj and sanam. And sharwan did give us the treat!
