Poem: That's why I travel

I hope for pure,
I hope for melody,
I hope for me better,
And that's why I travel

Background

I just went in the trip to janakpur, dhangadhi and mahendranagar (located in terai region of Nepal) along with my friends. I have gathered a lot of new memories and moments that will be remarkable forever. This journey was a success and a huge collection of laughs and lessons. We really have a wonderful time in dhangadhi and janakpur. (Read about my whole experience in janakpur, Nepal) It brings back a lot of smiles and experiences when I look back into it.

Traveling is a wonderful thing that a person really requires to do. It brings a opportunity for thinking, laughing and I believe a opportunities to develop oneself. Traveling is often avoided by a person due to their works or other things but I believe we can all have a excuse for avoiding it but the thing I always remember is that time is limited better days may come but we live in the moments of uncertainty due to which I try to push myself although situation mayn't seem to be bit of favorable. (this didn't mean to be completely care-free)

So here is the first poem after this extraordinary journey I have been to and I hope it provides value to you all.

Poem

'That's why I travel'

I dream of moments,
I dream of places,
I dream of people,
And I dream of events

I wanted some evil,
I wanted some shadows,
I wanted some unplanned steps,
And I wanted some unfiltered dialogues,

Maybe I wanted some romance,
Maybe I wanted some melody,

Maybe I wanted some mindfulness,

Maybe I wanted some greed,

I needed a better image,

I needed a independent state,

I needed a awesome company,

I needed some unrecorded mistakes,

I hope for pure,

I hope for melody,

I hope for me better,
